The Mask Ox, wn^'katus, has been tlionglit to be on the horderLmd i«im[T]een the Sii^ep and Oxen, as indeed expressed in its scientific nama It is a purely Arctic creature, now confined to the Nearotic region; but it formerly existed in the Arctic regions, of Europe.

Th« auatoiuy of the " soffc parts" of this genus has lately been investigated by Dr. Ixinnberg.[1] The aninial lias no foot glands such as occur in Ot'is. Its kidneys, however, are non~ lobate, and it has orbital glands. The cotyledons of the placenta ace unusually large, and the cow has the " primary foux " teats. It caiinot, in fact, be definitely referred to either the Caprine or the Bovine section of the CaTieoraia, and while possibly most allied to J3toforws, it may be regarded, at least for the present, as entitled to form a separate sub-family of its own. The muzzle
